In Passing

Doris Lee Henderson Grove, 95, of Groveland Farm in Forest, Va., died Jan. 6, 2023.

Doris was born in Brookneal, Va., March 27, 1927, the daughter of the late Walter Carter Henderson and Elsie Mae Clark Henderson; she was the second of four children.

With her loving husband of 66 years, Charles Whitney Grove, who preceded her in death, Doris helped to establish Groveland Farm in 1959 with 40 registered Angus cattle, which grew to a herd of more than 300 head. Enjoying the fruits of their hard work, together they traveled across the country and around the world relishing new experiences and making new friends along the way.

Doris attended Madison College (now JMU) in Harrisonburg, Va., and taught third and fourth grades at New London Academy and Leesville Road Elementary School. After retiring from teaching, she worked at Arthur’s Flower Cart, honing her floral arrangement skills while compassionately helping others to both celebrate and mourn.

Doris was an incredible cook, loving time in the kitchen creating delicious meals for her family and friends. Never one to follow a recipe, or write down the ingredients she used, she loved hosting dinner parties and making the best yeast rolls, soups, casseroles and desserts. No one ever left Groveland Farm hungry if she had anything to do with it.

For decades, Doris was a generous and active member of Forest United Methodist Church and both the Forest and Lynchburg Women’s Clubs. She also helped to organize a women’s investment club, through which she became quite the savvy investor. A strong leader in both her church and community, Doris was always ready to lend a helping hand.

Doris is survived by children, Glenna (John) and Charles “Chuck” (Ruth); four grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Doris left an indelible impression on all who knew and loved her. She will be greatly missed by everyone as she is reunited in death with the love of her life.
