ARCNet's Bull Listing Service helps producers buy bulls

Looking for registered Angus bulls to use on your cow herd? A service of the American Angus Association's Commercial Relations Department is online to assist you.

The Angus Resource Clearinghouse Network's (ARCNet) Bull Listing Service identifies Angus bulls that are for sale and, at the same time, helps producers find bulls that fit their individual needs.

Each listing includes ranch information, bull name, date of birth, expected progeny differences (EPDs), sire and maternal grandsire.

Producers who are looking for specific Angus genetics can search the database by EPDs, sire groups and location by state. Once they find bulls they are interested in buying, they can contact the listed breeder.

The ARCNet site also maintains Angus feeder-calf listings, replacement-female listings, a cattle-wanted listing and a list of Angus-influence sales.

All are accessible via the Internet at www.angus.org.
